SHOT HIM IN HIS SLEEP.

PIER TRYING TO KILL PLIMLEY. MRS. PLIMLEY KILLS HERSELF.

Turfman and is Known on the Win ter Race Tracks as Jersey Jake—The Letter With Which She Sammoned Him to Her Sick Bed in Order to Kill Mim. Lettie Plimley shot her husband, Jacob Plimley, at their home in the third story at 148 Flattush avenue, Brooklyn, yesterday, inflieting what may prove a fatal wound, and then killed herself. Plimley is a well-known trainer trotting horses and a race-track speculator. has many patrons at the Guttenburg and Mouceater tracks, and has been known by the amiliar title of "Jersey Jake." He is 42 years old and slimly built. His wife, who was 38 years old, was a handsome woman, with lightbrown hair and blue eyes. The couple had been living together for a little over three ears, but whether they were legally married or not has not been definitely ascertained, although they passed as husband and wife. The woman was originally the wife of Wilam Myers, a New York stationer, who obtained a divorce from her several years ago. he subsequently married John Howard, who interested in race and trotting horses. and two years after his death she took up with She had three children, Freddie, Willie, and Lillie, aged 15, 12, and 8 years, respectively, and, although they are supposed to be the issue of her secon pear the name of Howard, they are really said be her children by her first husband. Plimby kept a training stable for trotting horses on the Boulevard at the time Mrs. Howard went to live with him, but he soon gave it up and moved with his wife and three stepchil-

Mrs. Plimley was very much devoted to her husband, but there were quarrels from time to time, resulting, as supposed, from the hushand's periodical indifference to her and his sporting inclinations. The most serious quarrel between the couple occurred about four months ago, and resulted in a separation. It months ago, and resulted in aspparation. It is said that Plimley objected to the presence of his stepson Freddie in the house, although the boy was employed in the Arbuckle building and helped to pay for his board. The dispute between Plimley and his wife about the boy and money matters was a very bitter one, but when Plimley was leaving he cut some hair from her head and kissed her good-by. He told his wife that he was going to a stock farm near Indiana, Pa, as a trainer, and soon after his departure his wife received a letter from him dated at that place. Another letter came soon afterward, but all communication between husband and wife then stopped. About a month ago drs. Plimley was taken ill and confined to her bed. Toward the close of January she learned that her husband had returned to Brooklyn and was stopping at 43 Sands street. On Jan. 29 she wrote this letter, which was found in her husband's pocket yesterday after the shooting, and which helps to explain the tragedy: said that Plimley objected to the presence some time, and about six months ago moved to the apartment house in Flatbush avenue

My DEAR RUBBAND: Won't you please come home.

No roply to this letter was received, so far as known, by Mrs. Pilmley, but on Wednesday hight her husband called at the bouse and had an interview with her, romaining, however, only a few minutes. He returned about it o'clock yesterday morning. At that time his wife was along in the apartments with her little daughter. Lillie, boon after his arrival Pilmley undressed himself and told the girl to go into the kitchen and loave him and her nother alona. Lillie went down stairs and played with some children on the second floor, returning about 11 o'clock. About half an hour later on, when she was looking out of the window, her stepfather called her, and, going to the room, she found him lying on the loor, moaning, and saw a stream of blood coming from his alde.

Your mother has shot me," he said. "Go to Charles Bader's saloon and tell him to come bera."

The girl hurried to the saloon, a short discance way. Mr. Bader was not in at the time, but Bartender Louis Harrison, noticing the rightened look in the child's face, hurried out, and, with Policeman John Clarke, who was on duty at the Long Island depot, went to the Plimley apartments. They found Plimley lying on his side on the floor close to the bed, still bleeding from the wound in his right side and groaning as if in great pain. He was dressed only in his underclothes. Mrs. Plimley was lying dead near by. A five-chambered it-calibre revolver was firmly grasped in her hand, and when Policeman Clarke removed it be found that two chambers were empty. The frection of the fatal builted was indicated by he powder marks and blood on the right ear. The woman's right hand was also blackened and singed by the blazing powder.

Pending the arrival of the ambulance surgeon. Plimley said that he must have fallen asleep soon after he went to bed with his wife, said that she probably got up, procured the pistol, and, returning to bed, shot him in his sleep, for it was not until he awoke that he elt the stinging pain in his side and realized that he was shot. Just at that instant he saw his wife putting the revolver to her head, and tried to stop her, but failed. Finding that his shirt was aftre at the point where the bullet had entered, he stepped out of bed and valled to his stepdaughter. He denied that he had had any quarrel with his wife after enering the house. He was removed to the sency Hospital, and in the afternoon the docors bought he might recover.

Fra. Plimley several days ago told her son addie "If anything should happen to her" to book behind a certain picture in the parlor and he would lind something. Yesterday after-book behind a certain picture in the parlor and he would ind something. Yesterday after-book behind a certain picture in the parlor had hed frequent quarrels about money matters.

which made a regular business of stealing silk. Detective Sergeants Evanhoe and Valleily have been at work trying to find the other members of the gang.

They saw two young men walking along the Bowery, late on Wednesday night, carrying a large bundle. These men they recognized as having been prosent at Hennessy's examination, and, on the supposition that they belonged to the gang of silk stealers, they followed them. The men led the detectives to stuyvesant place, where they entered the store of Pauline Walhoff, at No. 4. Going into a rear room, the men opened their bundle, which proved to be a roil of silk. While they were breating with Mrs. Walhoff about the price is be paid for the silk the detectives entered by darrested all three. The rooms over the op were searched, and two trunks full of olen silks and laces were found.

The men gave their names as George Murray and Henry Anderson when arraigned at selferson Market Court yesterday morning. They were remanded. Mrs. Walhoff, who was charged with receiving stolen goods, was also temanded.

M'NAMARA'S RABBIT DOG. He Assisted in an Unusual Pox Munt in Nonwicz. Feb. 2.-The prolonged cold spell and hard blanket of snow on the ground have friven produtory beasts and birds into Connecticut cities and villages in search of food. and the hunting is better in town now than out of it. The liveliest fox bunt of the season securred in the heart of Norwich yesterday. It was about 11:30 o'clock in the forenoon, when James Gregson, coachman for J. De Trafford Blackstone, who was exercising the latter's spanking team on Orchard street, saw a fox crossing the street about a dozen rods ahead of him. The fox had been trotting along at a free-and-easy galt, but took fright at the team. bounded over a stone wall near a dwelling. and plunged into a grove of trees near the Rockwell mansion. Gregson "fired up" promptly with a sportsman's arder and drove a rattling pace to John McNamara's house at Cliff and Roath streets. He flung down the reins, leaped from his carriage, and hitched his horses in seven seconds. Breathless, he

"Lend me your dog. John! Your rabbit dog mean-ain't got no time to talk-tell yer later—come, quick—seen a fox—hurry up with yer dog-whoop-la!"

"All right," shouted John in return, "there's he dog-come here. Spot-take him-it's a fox, d'ye understand ?—sic 'em, now—git!" And James Gregson and Spot were off on the dog. He is just a rabbit dog-a cross between fox terrier and a pointer—but when John Me Namara yelled "fox" into his ear he seemed to Namara yelled 10X into his ear nesessment to be inspired from that instant on for thirty minutes. But James Gregson had no gun, so he ran like a deer across lots to his own home, the rabbit dog racing behind him, selzed his gun, and a moment later hunter and dog were tearing down Orchard street in pursuit of the game. At the entrance to the Rockweil grove, into which the fox had piunged, Gregson put Spot's nose to the trail, and that inspired animal uttered a single enthusiastic ory and followed as if he had never done any hunting in his life except chasing foxes. When the dog lad disappeared into the forest Gregson shrewdly took a shortcut through it, came out on its eastern border a few minutes later, and posting himself on the summit of a famous cliff there, confidently awaited the approach of the chase. The dog was now in full cry and the chase evidently coming Gregson's way. So he slipped behind a tree, cocked both barreis, and lifted himself on tiptoe with expectation. He had stood in that attitude eight minutes when he heard the snapping of twigs in the grove not six yards away, and almost instantly liepnard teaped out of cover and made directly toward the ledge. He never reached that landmark, however. James Gregson's gun spoke out-once, twice—and the fox, with a wicked snarl, leaped into the air, dropped on his side, rolled over a couple of times, and died within ten seconds.

Two minutes later John McNamara's extrae inspired from that instant on for thirty conds. Two minutes later John McNamara's extra-

The First National Bank of Little Rock

Suspends-Half a Million Stolen. LITTLE ROCE, Ark., Feb. 2.-The First Na. tional Bank of this city did not open for bustness to-day. Its liabilities are understood to be over half a million. About ten days ago the bank passed through a crisis, but through the assistance of Col. Logan H. Root, its former President, public confidence was partially restored. The bank was reorganized nearly two weeks ago with Col. Root as President and Dr. G. M. Taylor Vice-President. The cause of suspension was the issuance of fraudulent paper by the former officers of the bank to the amount of several hundred thousand dollars. In an interview last night Col. Root said:

"When I took charge of the bank the statelara. In an interview last night Col. Root said:

"When I took charge of the bank the statement showed that President Allis and his friends had personally taken more than $450,000 of the bank's money and for which there was but very little security. Since then paper has been presented bearing the endorsement of the bank's name by President Allis and Cashier Denny that was not on the books of the institution. More than $130,000 of such paper has already appeared, and rumors have been received of more than double that amount. There is no way of ascertaining the exact amount of such fraudulent paper that is out for which the bank has never received one cent's benefit. Under the circumstances we thought it best to close the institution and place its affairs in the hands of the Government.

"The form of most unrecorded paper is simply ordinary promissory notes, most of which we have seen are signed by either 'City Electric Street Railway Company.' Press Printing Company.' The McCarthy Joyce Company.' or other persons closely connected with Mr. Allis, all endorsed by the bank's name by Allis and Denny. Whether depositors will be paid in full or not depends on many things. The stockholders are liable to an assessment in the aggregate amounting to $500,000. Whether all can or will pay no one can say. It has assets, of course, that are of value, but as to the unknown and unrecorded liabilities no mortal can tell. The capital stock of the bank was $500,000: surplus, $100,000."

RELEN POTTS A MORPHINE USER. Alleged Evidence that Carlyle Harris's Mother Has Secured in Scranton.

SCHANTON, Feb. 2.-Mrs. F. M. Harris thinks she has been successful in her hunt here to secure new evidence in the case of her son. Carlyle Harris, now under conviction in New York for the murder of his wife, Helen Potts. Col. Frank Estzsimmons, the Scranton attorney in the case, to-day sent many affidaneys, and has still much evidence which will be produced whon the case comes up again next week. The newly found evidence has been obtained from Helen Potts's friends and intimates while she was a visitor here at the home of her uncle, Dr. C. W. Treverton. Many letters have also been received by Col. Fitzsimmons from persons who desire their names withhold, but who are willing to be summoned as witnesses if needed. Some of these letters are from young women in the Hyde Park section of the city, who during Helen Potte's visit here associated with her, and who were spoken of as the "arsenic-eating coterie."

The evidence gathered is said to show that Miss Potts was a confirmed morphine eater, hworn statements have been obtained from her girl friends on this point. There is also some evidence that Dr. Treverton encouraged his niece in the use of morphine, and it is stated that prescriptions that he gave her have been procured from a Hyde Park drug store

RICHMOND TERMINAL.

RELIEF FROM ITS EMBARRASSMENTS AT LAST IN SIGHT.

Brezel, Morgan & Co. will Again Take Up the Question of Reorganization-Support Promised by the Interests Now in Contro A more favorable turn was given to the affairs of the Richmond and West Point Termi-nal Railway and Warehouse Company resterday by the announcement after the close of business that the banking house of Drexel. Morgan & Co. had consented to resume work on a plan for the rehabilitation of the properties. It is understood that Mr. Morgan was induced to reconsider his action of last summer by the representations of Mr. W. C. Whitney, who, with Mr. T. F. Ryan, is credited with recent heavy purchases of Richmond Terminal stock.

Negotiations have been in progress for some time, but it is said that the desired result was only reached on Wednesday night at a confer-ence between Mr. Morgan and Mr. Whitney. meeting of the Richmond Terminal Reorganization Committee was held at the Central Trust Company yesterday morning at which all the members were present, and the follow-& Co. with the signatures attached of Messrs. Clyde, Stone, Strong, Maben, and Ryan: Since the time you were previously requested to take up the reorganization of the Richmond Terminal system much time and thought have been devoted to its affairs, and we realize that adverse financial conditions and also the present general distrust of all plans for the restoration of this system require that, to be successful, its reorganization must be undertaken by parties possessing the confidence of both the security holders and confidence of both the accurity holders and the public, and also the financial strength sufficient for its accombilishment.

"We therefore ask you to take up this reorganization of the litchmoud Terminal and its allied properties, each pledging you our personal support and aid, in full confidence that the security holders will support us in this request.

"We appreciate the labor and responsibility connected with this undertaking, and are therefore willing to do all in our power to give you full control of the reorganization, as auggested in your letter of June 28, and to advise our friends and the security holders generally to deposit their securities, without requiring the assurances customary in such quiring the assurances customary in such cases.

With this letter was also sent one from President Olcott of the Central Trust Company, as follows:

"I have read with pleasure the letter which you and your associates propose sending to Messrs. Drexel, Morgan & Co., and concur in the wisdom of the course proposed by you. I feel that it is essential for the interest of the bondholders and stockholders under many of the trust deeds represented by me that an early and comprehensive reorganization of the Richmond Terminal properties should be brought about, and I will gladly cooperate by all means in my power and consistently with the provisions of my trusts in facilitating and promoting such a course should Messrs. Drexel, Morgan & Co. The answer of Messrs. Drexel, Morgan & Co.

The answer of Messrs. Drexel, Morgan & Co. was as follows:

"Mess. William P. Chole and Americales:

"We have received your favor of this date, inviting us to take up the reorganization of the Richmond Terminal and its allied properties. Since our correspondence of last summer we have not kept ourselves advised as to the Richmond Terminal situation, nor are we conversant with the legal or other changes which may have occurred. Relying upon the support and aid of which you assure us in case we take up the reorganization, we are willing to make such further examination as may be necessary to acquaint ourselves with present conditions, and if, after such examination, we find no reason to change our views then expressed as to the possibility of a successful reorganization of the properties, we will take up the business on the basis set forth in our letter of June 28, 1892, addressed to William E. Strong, Chairman."

The details of the plan which was prepared last summer by Drexel, Morgan & Co. have never been divulged, and all that is known is that in a general way most of the roads in the system are considered able to take care of themselves. It is said that a reorganization of the Richmond Terminal Company alone is contemplated, and that in addition to an assessment on the stock the holders of the 5s and 6s will be asked to fund at least two years' coupons.

The rumor was revived yesterday that in and 6s will be asked to that at classifications.

The rumor was revived yesterday that in case Mesara Drexel, Morgan & Co. positively refused to reorganize the properties then the friends of the Pennsylvania Hailroad stood ready to undertake it in the interest of that system. It is confidently asserted that high officials of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company had expressed a desire for close relations between the two systems.

The amount of the deficiency was not made known, and the same care is being used now by the Postmaster and by the young man's bondsmen to prevent its publication. It was said that he made a full confession when the irregularities were discovered. A warrant is said to have been issued for his arrest at the time. Hartman has been in Newark ever since the time of his alleged crime, with the exception of some months spent in Mexico. Lately he has been studying law and writing for a society paper. A few weeks ago a benefit performance was given in the High Street Presbyterian Church to help him while pursuing his studies.

MUST HAVE SMELT POWDER, Otherwise Candidates are Not Eligible to the

tions for membership of Commander Theodore F. Jewell, U. S. N., and Acting Assistant Payaster George Wilson caused a good deal of talk among the members of that organization For some time there have been two parties n the organization, known as the "liberal constructionists" and the "strict constructionists." The strict constructionists favored a rigid adherence to the rule that candidates to be eligible must have been cilicers in active service in the war, provided, of course, they did not claim admission as the inheritors of the rights of previous members. The liberals thought that men who were officers "in service" were eligible, and they were ready to extend the rights of membership to officers who were stationed during the war in New York harbor or some other scene remote from the actual field of operations, as also to cadets at West Point and Annapolis.

The Commander-in-Chief sided with the liberals in the cases of Commander Jewell and Paymaster Wilson. The difference of opinion will probably not end with their rejection. ionista" The strict constructionists favored

A Guard at Mr. Blafne's Grave.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.-It has become necessary to place a guard around Mr. Blaine's grave at Cak Hill Cometery to prevent curious people from despoiling the mound of its covsting of flowers. It was found that the flowers were rapidly disappearing from the mound despite the rigid rules of the cemetery com-pany prohibiting the removal of flowers from the cemetery. Large crowds have visited the grave daily, the majority of the visitors being women, and unscrupilous ones would seize their opportunity to pluck a handful of flow-ers, which they would conceal under their wraps as they passed out of the cemetery gate. In contrast to this spirit of vandallsm is the fact that in the past two or three days quite a number of ladies, strangers at that, have vis-ited the cemetery and placed flowers on the grave, saying that they had never known Mr. Blaine personally, but was almirers of his character and ability. despite the rigid rules of the cemetery com-

Vaccination in Ohio's Pentientiary. COLUMBUS, Ohio, Feb. 2.-Dr. W. T. Rowles, rison physician, will recommend to the Board of Penitentiary Managers, at the regular monthly meeting next week, that all the convicts in the penitentiary be vaccinated at once. This step he deems advisable, from the fact that small-pox has appeared at the Akron and other county prisons. He fears an epidemic should any of these county prisoners bring the disease into the penitentiary.

THE NEW MAID LET HIM IN. And He Stole Some of the Jewelry of M

Mrs. J. Edward Simmons of 28 West Fifty-second street, wife of the President of the Fourth National Bank, went out for a drive in the Park one morning about a fortnight ago, leaving a new maid to answer the door bell.

Mr. Simmons had gone down to the bank an hour before, and there was nobody in the hopse save the servants. A slim, good young man stood on the corner of Fifth avenue watching Mrs. Simmons get into the car riage. He had noted the departure of the bank President and his two children. Ten minutes after Mrs. Simmone's carriage had gone the good-looking stranger pulled the area bell and told the new maid that Mr. Simmons had sent him to show the coachman how to fix the furnace in the cellar. The cold snap had disordered the heating apparatus, snap had disordered the heating apparatua, and the good-looking young man somehow had found it out.

Fresident Simmons knows a thing or two about the ways of sneak thieves, however, and he had expressly cautioned the new maid never to admit strangers, particularly men, when the family was away unless the caller showed a written order from the head of the house. The maid promptly told the stranger that the coachman wasn't in, and the self-possessed young man immediately suggested that he would go in and fix the heater himself. As he hadn't any toole and was better dressed than men who have to fuss around furnaces the maid hesitated about letting him in. She asked him if he came from Baker & Smith's.

"Why, certainly," he said, with such apparent frankness that the maid was thrown off her guard, and admitted himsto the cellar. He tinkered awhile at the heater, and then came up stairs and said that the trouble was with the radiators. The maid thought this probably was true, and she went up stairs to Mrs. Simmons's room on the second floor to clean the windows.

ably was true, and she went up stairs to Mrs. Simmons's room on the second floor to clean the windows.

Then the good-looking young man made a leisurely examination of the house. The parlor was full of handsome paintings and bric-abrac, but it was all too heavy to be carried away without detection in the street, so the good-looking young man went up to Mr. Simmons's library and helped himself to $10 worth of postage stamps.

After presending to inapect the radiator in Mrs. Simmons's room he looked around in the rooms set apart for Miss Simmons and the banker's son. He first took a sliver match safe from Miss Simmons's bureau. Then he struck a rich haul of jewelry in the son's room. In the bureau drawer were three gold watch chains, two diamond studs, and a Florentine scarfpin set with jewels, highly prized by young Mr. Simmons as a souvenir. The good-looking stranger gathered these up, with other pins, several pairs of cuff buttons, and two finger rings, and stowed them away in his pockets. The maid was still working at the windows.

"I believe that Mr. Simmons will find the heater all right, now," he said, politely looking in the room and addressing the maid. Then he walked down the stairs to the street and went away.

President Simmons said, laughingly: "I he walked down the stairs to the street and went away.

President Simmons said, laughingly: "I wasn't going to say anything about the robbery, but now that the story's out I suppose I'll have to go and see my friend Capt, Iteilly, and see if he can't catch that smart young man. It's a little late to go to the police, but I guess they'll run the fellow down or got the property. I can identify the jewelry."

She didn't drink anything. After looking around the room for a few minutes she came out and started back to West street.

Policeman Flynn suspected that the young woman was out of her mind, and he decided to arrest her. When she saw him coming toward her she ran away. After a chase of two blocks he caught her.

At the Charles street station she said that her name was Victoria Worralls. 25 years old, and that she lived with her parents at 123 Arademy street. Poughkeepsie. She came to this city on Wednesday morning, she said, to become a trained nurse in St. Luke's Hospital. She said that she had been suffering from a nervous disease. She was removed to Believue Hospital and put in the insane pavilion, under care of Dr. Douglas. Her rolatives in Poughkeepsie were notified.

The Rev. Dr. J. Nevett Steele. assistant rector of Trinity Church, called at the hospital and inquired about the young woman. Dr. Steele said that he knew her parents well, and that she had been a parishioner of his when he was rector of a church in Foughkeepsie. Her father is Benjamin Worralls, a retired merchant. Dr. Douglas said the young woman probably would be well in a few days.

POUGHEKEPSIE, Fel. 2.—Mr. George Worralls, a brother of Miss Victoria Worralls, said today that he accompanied her to New York vesterday morning and left her at St. Luke's Hospital. CROKER'S PARTY OFF.

The Wagner Car Wanderer to Take Then to Hot Springs and California,

The private Wagner car Wanderer was attached to the rear of the Chicago limited train which pulled out of the Grand Central Station at 10 o'clock yesterday morning. In it as passengers were Richard Croker, Under Sheriff John B. Sexton, Police Justice Thomas F. Grady, John F. Carroll, Clerk of the Court of General Sessions, Michael F. Dwyer, the horseman, and J. R. McPherson, Jr.

Not all of these gentlemen will accompany the Tammany leader throughout his extended tour, which will take in Hot Springs, some Texan cities, and possibly California.

Mr. Croker was at the depot early, and found his way to his private car through the station master's office, avoiding the reporters who were watching for him, and who were told that he would board the train at the Mott Haven Station, 138th street. Among those who were present to bid the party good-by were Dr. Chauncey M. Depew, Commissioner of Public Works Daly, Daniel M. Donegan, the Wiskinskie of the Tammany Society, Sergeant-at-Arms Bob Kelly, Lawyer Joseph H. Stiner, and Mark Lanigan of the Fourth ward.

No definite itinerary for the trip has been arranged, and the wishes of the party, within the possibilities of modern railroading, will determine their route from Chicago and their stopping places from day to day. Senator Edward Murphy, Jr., may join the travellers at Hot Springs and accompany them to California.

Mr. Croker said that he will return in time to Mr. Croker was at the depot early, and found

BREWER SCHWITTS MARRIAGE TO MISS KRANZ STOPPED BY HIS OLD LOVE.

Bise Goldsung Was Sent to the Wedding by s Former Sulter of the Bride-Throw Bown Stairs by Her Recreant Lover, Elise Goldzung, aged 26, a female tailor, livng at 263 Ellery street, Williamsburgh, met hebaid Schmitt, a journeyman brewer, about five years ago, and, upon his promise to marry her when some family troubles he was involved in were settled, she agreed to live with him as his wife. They lived together for more than four years and have three children. Six months ago Schmitt deserted her, and when, after a search of three weeks, she found him in a tenement house on Flushing avenue he he said, he was about to marry another woman, Miss Goldzung had him arrested for abandenment, but the case was thrown out of sourt. Schmitt's arrest caused the woman he was about to have married to break the engagement. He returned to his old love and they lived together again until two months ego, when he disappeared again. Miss Goldzung searched in vain for him. She concluded that he had left Brooklyn. While she was finishing waistcoats on Wednesday night a well-dressed man called upon her and asked her if she was Mrs. Schmitt. "That's my name," she said. "What do her if she was Mrs. Schmitt.

That's my name," she said. "What do you want?"

"Never mind who I am." said the visitor. "Put on your hat and shaw! right away and go to Miss Liza Kranz's house, at 202 Floyd sirest. She wants to see you."

Miss Goldzung had never seen nor heard of Miss Kranz and was puzzled about the summons. Before she could ask the stranger why she was wanted by Miss Kranz the man was gone. Miss Goldzung dressed herself and went around to Floyd street. When she got to 202 she found the vestibule of the house crowded with women and children. She asked them it anything was going on, and was told that a wedding procession from Miss Kranz's room was soon expected to go to a minister's house in Hopkins street.

"Who is Miss Kranz going to marry?" inquired Miss Goldzung of a little girl.

"Thebaid Schmitt, the brewst."

Miss Goldzung ran up two flights of stairs to Miss Kranz's room and was kranz's room and waked into the kitchen. Half a dozen men and women were there drinking wine. Schmitt was among them. He turned pale when he saw Miss Goldzung, andfinearly fell over the stove. In a front room, surrounded by friends, was the expectant bride having a white veil adjusted over her pretty wedding dress.

"So I've found you." exclaimed Miss Goldzung as she advanced toward Schmitt. She shook her fiets in his face and cried: "Villain that you are, you shall never marry this woman. I am your lawful wife, and you knowlt." Miss Kranz ran into the kitchen, and Miss Goldzung warned her against marrying Schmitt.

"If you do so you do it at your peril." said Miss Goldzung warned her against marrying Schmitt.

Goldzung warned her against marrying Schmitt.

"If you do so you do it at your peril." said Miss Goldzung.

Miss Kranz fainted and was carried into the parior. Schmitt tried to induce Miss Goldzung to go away, but she refused. Then he hurled a flatiron at her, which struck her right shoulder. She screamed, and Schmitt grabbed her by the throat, it is alleged, and threw her down the stairs. The wedding was indefinitely postponed. When Miss Kranz revived she declared she would never marry Schmitt after disgracing her as he did. Miss Goldzung went to the Lee Avenue Police Court yesterday morning and obtained a warrant against Schmitt for assaulting her. She said she didn't know who it was that informed her of Schmitt's prospective marriage, but she believed it was a former suiter of Miss Kranz.

NEWS OF THE NEW BOATS.

What Tachtumen are Talking About on Both Sides of the Atlantic,

Yachtsmen on both sides of the Atlantic are busy just now guessing about the seven new single stickers which are being constructed in this country and Great Britain. While the greatest secreey is maintained by both designers and owners in regard to the new boats. whitewashed windows and patrols, and it is probable by spring yachtemen will know all they care to about the new yachts.

According to the latest reports it would look as though the Carroll boat will have a centreboard, and it seems equally certain that the Rogers boat will have one, too, while the Mor-gan boat will be of the keel type. So much for the boats now building on this side of the Atland, the best authorities now agree that Lord Dunraven's boat will be fitted with a centreboard, while the Prince of Wales's new boat and the Fife and Soper syndicate yachts

Commodore E. D. Morgan, in company with C. Oliver Iselin and George D. Leech, visited Bristol a few days ago in Mr. Morgan's steam yacht Javelin, and held a long confer ence with J. B. Herreshoff. They left at about 4 o'clock on the tug Aquidneck, the Javelin having in the mean time taken on board about three tons of moulded lead which she will use for outside ballast.

There has been more or less speculation in regard to the name for the Carroll 84footer, which is now being constructed at the Herreshoff's yard. At first she was to be called the Marion, after Mr. Carroll's wife, Jater one of the Boston papers said positively that her name would be Typhoon, now the Providence Journal says that it can be stated on good authority that the yacht will be chris tened Mariana, which is a combination of his on good authority that the yacht will be christened Mariana, which is a combination of his wife's name and that of one of her antecedents. The launch of the Carroll boat has not been fixed, but will probably be within two weeks.

Hugh R. Houston, the Glasgow correspondent of the lioston libraid, says he had an interview with Archibalt Hogarth, who is to command the new Fife syndicate boat, and that he practically admitted that the new boat would be purely of the keel type. Capt. Hogarth, when asked whether the fin centroboard in the 10-rater Ysouit which he hast had charge of was an advantage or not, gave it as his opinion lift it was more of a hindrance than an adhanage. He says that the only time the fin seemed to help the 1 seuit was when she was on a broad reach in a lop of the sea. Then it helped to steady her. He says that the new boat will be an improved Thalla, with somewhat extreme dimensions. He has received a free hand as to her crew, as he will carry a squad of from twenty-five to thirty Scotch lads when he meets the Carroll boat.

In speaking of the Prince of Wales yacht Britannia, Mr. Houston says that she will be of the pure keel type. Her lead keel was cast last week in Messrs. Henderson's yard in Meadowaide and is abnormal both in regard to its weight and measurements. It is tapered away very fine toward the keel, giving a centreboard effect, and a great grip aft, totalling, it is said, 17 leet. The weight of this lend block, which has been cast in one piece, is seventy-five tons, and is the largest and haavlost casting that has ever been run for a racing cutter.

The Duraven boat's steadying over has block, which has been cast in one piece, is seventy-five tons, and is the largest and heavlost casting that has ever been run for a racing cutter.

The Dunraven boat's steadying power has not yet been put in shape, but it is understood that she will have a slot in her casting.

Messrs. Inglis of Pointhouse are engaged just now in running the lead keel for the new Fife cutter, and it is said on good authority that the new Farlie boat will be purely of the keel type and centreboard fin. In the matter of weight below it is said that the Fife boat will carry something like 75 tons of lead on her keel, like the Frince of Wales boat.

The latestrumor on the other side is that a large cutter has been ordered in England to be built on the Adriatic for a member of the Imperial and Royal Yacht Club of Austria. It is said that the new boat will sail for the German Emperor's shield.

In view of the fact that a large number of Eastern and foreign yacht clubs will send their boats through the Erie and St. Lawrence canals to the World's Fair at Chieago next summer, interest in yachting has been growing in the Windy City. Two or three men who were formally prominent in Eastern yachting circles have organized a yacht club there which will probably receive its charter from the State during the present year. The new organization, which will be known as the Yacht Club of Chieago, with Col. Robert Roe as Commodore, has perfected plans which will be speedly carried out in the interests of visiting yachts during the World's Fair. As soon as a few legal formalities are removed, contracts will af once be made to erect breakwaters of sufficient size to give a good anchorage and lee for at least six hundred large yachts. The club will also erect on the shores a handsome club house and casine at a cost of $75,000. for the visiting yachtsmen, and some seven stations within a distance of twenty miles of Chieago, which will make convenient points for yachts to run to. It is said that little can be done in the way of receiving visiting yachts

ATHLETICS IN THE SCHOOLS.

The Boys Preparing for a Lively Season of If they can secure a place in which to hold athletic games the boys of Harvard school will follow the example set by Berkeley and issue invitations to the school athletes of this city and Brooklyn to compete in a good set of open events. Harvard has since its opening een a school devoted to field and track athletics. The institution has supported admirable baseball and football teams, and last spring the Harvard lads carried off the honors at the interscholastic field day at the Berkeley Oval. So it is only natural that they should want to be right in the indoor athletic swim. Although bound by no league ties, they sent baseball and football teams to play in Brooklyn, and were represented at the open games of the Adelphi Academy A. A. held a couple of years ago. Some of the Harvard athletes were among the organizers of the Oxford Athletic Association of Brooklyn. The Oxfords are now planning to hold open games in the Clermont Avenue Kink in Brook games in the Clermont Avenue Rink in Brooklyn some time during March. The games would bring out a great number of school-boy athletes. The Oxford is now mainly composed of athletes in the academic department of the Polytechnic Institute. If the Oxford athletes manage their games properly they are bound to be successful. The Brooklyn schools will help to make them a success, as by cooperating with the Oxford A. A. they could do a good turn to the Gothamites by having them compate in Brooklyn in return for their courtesy in inviting the boys across the Bridge to New turn to the Gotford A. A. they could do a good turn to the Gotformites by having them compete in Brooklyn in return for their courtesy in inviting the boys across the Bridge to New York.

The idea of holding interclass indoor games, adopted by the boys of Columbia Grammar School, may be followed by the other schools in this city. The Columbia boys find the scheme a good one for developing material for interscholastic games. C. G. S. have been a bit backward in athletics and field sports for the past two years or so, and they intend to work very hard to retrieve their reputation. They are going in for athletics of all kinds, and are being heartlly supported by Frincipal Campbell and by Dr. Moore. The second set of games in the interclass series will be held on Friday afternoon, Feb. 10. The second and third forms will compete. The events will be as follows: Quarter-mile run, half-mile walk, running high jump, putting the shot, running broad jump, half-mile run, and a competition in starting. The Columbia boys hope to be well represented on the diamond this spring.

The Board of Governors of the School Athleic Association have appointed Mr. Mitchell to take charge of the candidates for the team until they shall elect acaptain. The candidates will train in the gymnasium. A hag for batting and a "spool" for accurate throwing have been put up, and the training will be of the best. The following schedule has been arranged for all the candidates for either the baseball or track athletic teams: Running high jump, from 2; to 3 octock on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday afternoons; putting the shot. from 4 to 5 octock on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday; running, from 2 to 3 on Tuesday and Thursday; running proad jump, 4 to 4 octock on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday; attenday, and baseball from 2 to 3 on the same days, charies E. McCann is Chairman and Otto Wagner secretary of the Board of Governors. The committee in charge of the games scheduled for Feb. 10 consists of Manrara Lord, De Witt liboads. SHE DETECTED HIM HERSELF.

Drug Broker Henry's Wife Took Witnesses. Along and Verified Her Suspicion

An undefended action of Clementine Henry for an absolute divorce from Charles S. Henry. drug broker, formerly of Brooklyn, was tried before Judge Dugro of the Superior Court yesterday. Mrs. Henry, her sister, Maria Bliss, and a detective—another detective—gave evidence. Mrs. Henry said she suspected that her husband was not true to her about a year ago. She determined to have his movements shadowed. She got a friend to act as detective and found that last fall be had been taking a young woman to Saturday matiness. The couple took different trains after the matinées and met at the United States Hotel.

On Dec. 24, believing her husband woulds take this young woman to a Christmas matinée, she, her sister, and a detective engaged a sitting room at the hotel about 4 o'clock in the after 5 o'clock they heard Henry ask the hallalternoon, and awaited developments. A little after 5 o'clock they heard Henry ask the hall boy.

"Has she come yet?" He got an answer in the negative. He went out, and returned in a ten minutes with a package that looked like, candy. The hall boy said 'she' had gone up stairs. Henry went to the register and wrote:

"Mr. and Mrs. Jones. Brooklyn." The cierk put "(5)" after the entry.

The trie waited half an hour and went up to room (3), and Mrs. Henry knocked. Henry obened the door and they went in. The young woman was untying her shoe and Henry was in his shirt sleeves.

"You wretch!" said Mrs. Henry.

"You've got the evidence," said Henry. "I have been trying to give it to you for the past year. Make the most of it."

Mrs. Henry refused to leave the room until the young woman had departed. When she had gone Mrs. Henry refused to leave the room other things she thought about him and left him alone.

Judge Dugro gave her temporary alimony of $15 a week and a counsel fee of $100, and reserved decision of the case.
